Five Best products that contain matrixyl 3000

One of the most frequently searched terms on Truth In Aging is matrixyl 3000. This antioxidant is made by combining two peptides, palmitoyl oligopeptide and palmitoyl tetrapeptide-7. It outperforms Vitamin C (and unlike some of the Cs, it doesn't irritate) by stimulating the matrix molecules - collagens 1,3, 4 and fibronectin to reduce the appearance of wrinkles. According to clinical trials, matrixyl 3000 led to a 33% decrease in wrinkle density, a 23% decrease in the volume of wrinkles and a 20% decrease in the depth of wrinkles.

The only problem is that this research was conducted by Sederma, the manufacturer of matrixyl 3000, and I haven't been able to find any independent research. Still, assuming that it is a good antioxidant, it is worth rounding up Truth In Aging's picks for the Five Best products that contain matrixyl 3000.

Isomers Matrixyl 3000 Rejuvenation Serum ($30). For a largely unadulterated matrixyl 3000 experience, it doesn't get much better than this. There is glycerin and linseed oil and not much else. For the full ingredients of this and the rest of the Five Best click 'continued reading' at the end of the post to get to the next page.

Your Best Face Correct ($150). Regular readers of Truth In Aging will know that YBF Correct is my new favorite eye cream. It has made a visible difference by eliminating some of the fine lines around my eyes. It contains matrixyl 3000, but doesn't rely on it. The other important anti-ager in Correct is spin trap, a clever little molecule that traps free radicals and stops them spinning out of control and causing havoc with your skin cells.

Bellaplex ($89 - although currently selling for $49 on Amazon.com). Bellaplex is another potion that keeps it simple. In addition to matrixyl 3000, it has Argireline (for preventing expression lines), sodium hyaluronate (moisture retention) and DMAE (firming). A popular reader choice.

Nutra-Lift Rejuvenating Therapy ($51.30). Nutra-Lift has recently changed its formula for Rejuvenating Therapy to add in matrixyl 3000 for the first time. I haven't tried this, but based on reviewing the ingredients, I am sorely tempted to. Matrixyl 3000 is at a concentration of 5% and Nutra-Lift has also jammed in an impressive number of other good antioxidants including copper peptides, CoQ10, grape, tea and algae. There is also marine collagen.

Cellbone Super AOX ($72 but currently on promotion for $36 on Cellbone's website). I have had extremely enthusiastic reports from readers claiming great results with Super AOX. This seems to be a good one for men. It has a hefty 10% dose of matrixyl 3000. Plus there is 1% CoQ10.

Notable for its absence from Five Best products with matrixyl 3000 is Dermapril SP. While there are some good things about Dermapril, it loses points for having at least 20 filler ingredients that won't do much, if anything, for you and there is an onerous monthly payment scheme. I just don't think Dermapril SP represents good value for money.

Note that the new version of Mychelle Supreme no longer contains matrixyl 3000 (apparently because it didn't meet Mychelle's standards of hygiene), so we haven't included it here. Myself and a reader are currently testing the new formulation of Supreme and we'll report back soon.
